WORLD OF HOOPS

World of Hoops is a decade-long visual anthropology that documents basketball courts across the world. A personal long-term project using hoops as a cultural lens into local communities.

Started by accident near Beijing in 2015, it has grown into a massive archive across 29 countries.

I photograph, direct and design the entire project myself, from scouting courts via Google Earth to building tools with AI.

BRANDING + UX/UI DESIGN

SWIMSCORE™

SwimScore is a male fertility startup focused on at-home testing. The brand needed to sit exactly between lifestyle and medical, approachable enough to remove the stigma but credible enough to be trusted.

I developed the full identity, visual language, directed the AI-generated visuals, designed the website and results dashboard end-to-end. From concept to live product in two months.

ALTARES

UX/UI DESIGN

Homepage

Homepage section,storytelling on scroll

Altares needed a digital refresh to modernize their web presence. I started with a single trial landing page, which delivered a 50% uplift in orders and higher engagement.

This led to redesigning all product pages and the homepage. Working with an in-house developer, I built new digital design guidelines on top of their existing brand to unify the web experience.

adidas RunLab is an in-store running experience offering customers a biomechanical analysis of their running. I was brought in to design the full digital side of the experience. From idle screens to live treadmill visuals to the final results report.

The goal was to integrate a third-party analysis tool into the adidas brand, while giving the experience a technical, data-rich feel. Designed within the adidas digital retail team.

MIELE

VISUAL DESIGN

Miele needed to modernise an ageing ecommerce platform across multiple markets, without a full rebuild. Working as a design duo with a UX specialist, we used Baymard research and benchmarking to identify where the experience fell short, then cleaned up the fundamentals: hierarchy, typography, colour, and friction across PLP, PDP, cart and checkout.

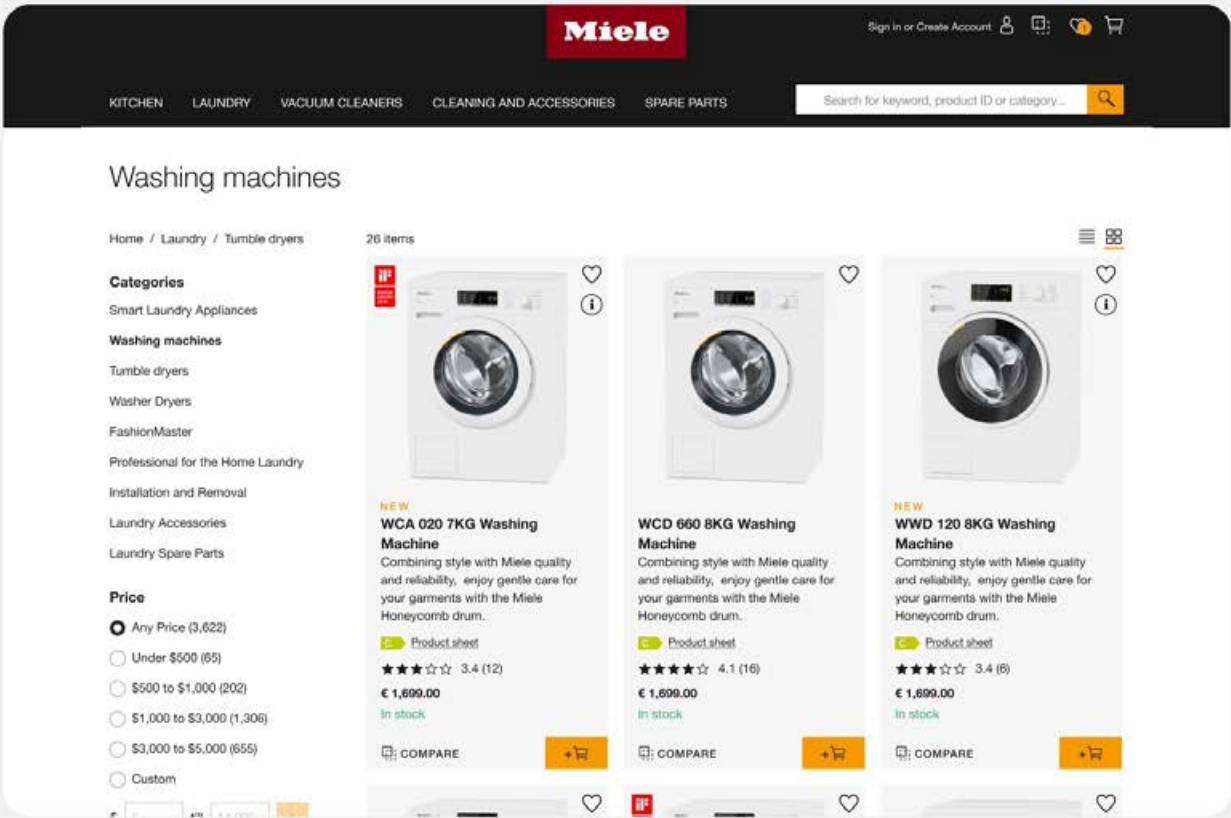

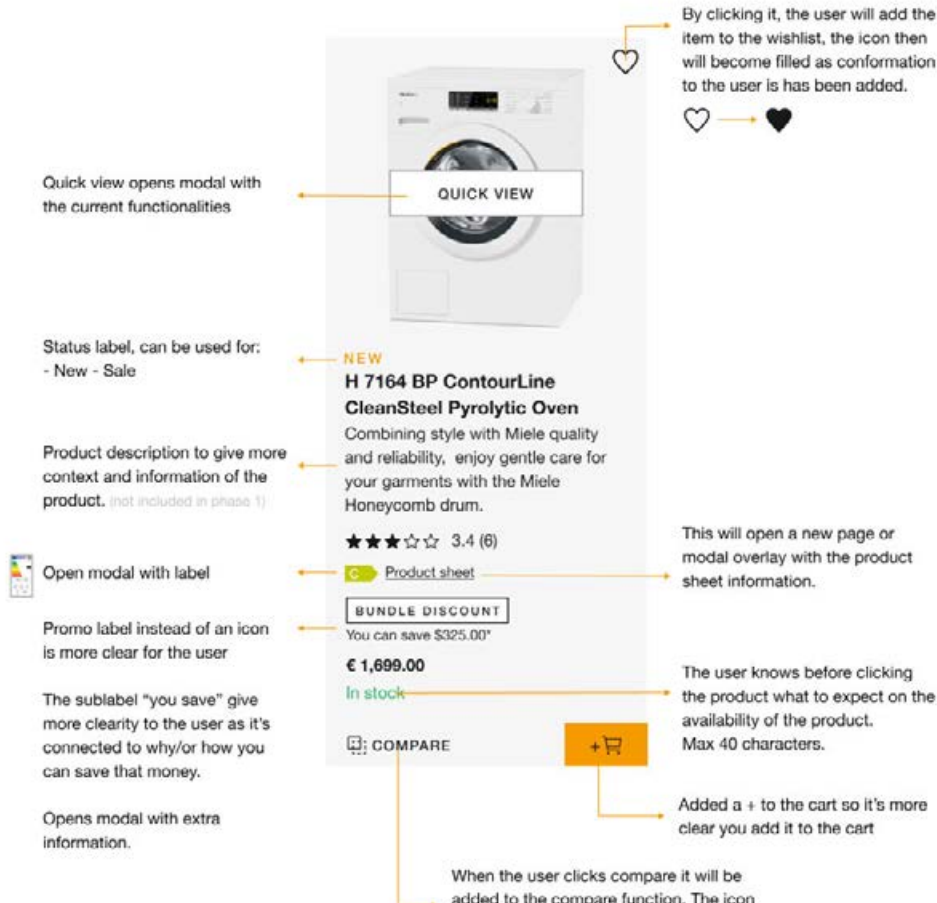

The result was a 45% uplift in product views, 59% more add-to-cart interactions, and a 64% rise in CTR across the Australian market.

ADIDAS

VISUAL DESIGN

adidas needed a way to surface membership-exclusive deals across their website without a clear visual system to distinguish them. I designed a coherent membership identifier style that integrated into the existing adidas design language, giving logged-in users a recognisable experience across the full journey.

From there, the focus shifted to the account area, making it more personalised, user-friendly and mobile-first.
